No. 102 Hull Street.

The only thing of importance in Manchester yesterday was the letter of Judge Ingram to the bar of Manchester upon the resolutions adopted by that body on bia resignation of the bench of the Corporation Court, which expressed a sense of appreciation of the action of that body and his thanks. He writes as follows:
Richmond, Va., Sep. 29, 1903.
To the Honorable, the Corporation Court of the City of Manchester:
I desire to express my sincere and profesional sense of appreciation of the action of the Corporation Court of Manchester in appointing a committee of the bar and the citizens of that city to prepare a memorial of my service as Judge of that honorable court, and to gratefully acknowledge my sense of the great honor conferred upon me by the handsome testimals of the committee, and entered of record on the minutes of the court. To say that from the bottom of my heart I thank the court, its officers the bar and the people for their loving textimonial, is but the truth. May God bow hy you all, is the earnest prayer of one who stands indebted to the people of Gar old Manchester.

NEW YORK, Beptember 39.—Some unpublished history of value and many interesting side-lights upon modern history and historic figures appear in the menoirs of M. DeBlowitz, Journalist and diplomat. In his memoirs which are to be published to-morrow by Doubleday, Page & Company, DeBlowitz gives a heretofore unpublished interview with Hismarck, had in 1878, which is a valuable contribution to the literature relating to the Iron Chancellor. Bismarck said:

"The peace of San Stefano was one of the most thoughtless actions of modern history. Ignatieff made a blunder which no true statesman would ever have committed. He took everything that he could get. We should not be where we now are if in 1896 I had acted like Ignatieff, if I had taken territory from her. I held my own, though, and since then I have often had cause to congratulate myself that I did so.

"In 1871 I acted in the same way, If

"But, as you know at the conclusion of a campaign such as that was, one has to take into consideration the military element, and I was obliged to listen to Molike, who kept repeating to me at every hour of the day: 'Metz in our hands, or in the hands of the French, means a difference of 100,000 men, more or less, in the army.' I could not impose upon my country the burden of putting 100,4000 more men into active service at a given moment."

LYNCHBURG, VA., Sept. 30.—C. A.

Staples was arrested to-day for shooting and killing a negro named Matt Burns. Staples is employed by John H. Heald and Company to look after the hauling of timber and bark at Concord, twelve miles east of the city. Under Staples there are a number of negroes, including Burns, who drive the various wagons. On several occasions recently Burns had been impertment to Staples, and this morning the two men had a quarrel. Burns jumped down from his wagon and leaped across a pile of lumber to get at Staples, when the latter drew a pistol and fired. The first ball took effect, but before the second shot could be fired the negro was on top of Staples, and, being a much larger and stronger man, he threw Staples to the ground. The negro could not keep the white man from firing the revolver, every chamber of which was emptled while the two lay struggling on the ground.

It is thought that every ball found lodgment in Burns' body. The last shot had hardly sounded when the negro gave up the fight and began to gasp in the threes of death. In his last struggle, however, his grip on Mr. Staples was so fierce that it took several persons to tear him away. In a few seconds he was dead.

A Long way Off.

Attention is called to the fact that the fight for successor to Judge D. C. Richardson as Commonwealth's Attorney of the city of Richmond, about which so much is now being said, will not come off until 1965, the new Constitution providing for an extension of the term until that time. Should Judge Richardson retire to run for Congress in the meantime his successor for the unexpired term would be appointed by Judge B. B. Witt, of the Hustings Court.

Tammany and King's County Delegations Will Fight in Convention-Certain that McClellan Will Be Candidate for Mayor.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.-There is no rift to-night in the impenetrable fog which local politics were plunged by the determination of Charles F. Murphy to place Comptroller Grout and President Fornes on the Tammany ticket and the implied intention of the two fusion candidates to accept the nomina tions. What the solution of the difficulty tions. What the solution of the difficulty will be no one can at present predict, and no clearing up appears likely until after the Tammany convention to-morrow night. That the names of Grout and Fornes must be wiped off the fusion slate and the Republican and Citizens' Union conventions reconvened to name other candidates is the expressed construction of Senator Platt and the leaders of the Republican and Citizens' Union organizations generally.

Much depends on what reply is made by Mr. Grout to a letter sent to him to-day by Mr. Cutting, of the Citizens' committee, demanding that he clearly define his position. Grout's reply is expected to-morrow.

to-morrow.

That there will be a desperate struggle in the Democratic convention between Tammany and the Kings county delegation appears certain. The Executive Committee of the latter organization met to-night and made it plain that although the nomination of McClellan may be accepted, those of Grout and Fornes will be contested to the uttermost.

District Attorney Jerome announced to-day that his address at the beefsteak dinner given by T. J. Campbell last night had been misinterpreted and that he had no idea of conveying the suggestion that he could by any possibility give his support to Tammany.

It appears practically certain that the candidates that will be nominated by the Democrats in convention to-morrow night have been selected. They are: George B, McClellan for Mayor, Edward M, Grout for Comptroller, Charles V. Fornes for President of the Board of Aldermen.

BARKSDALE BILL

TO BE AMENDED

The controversy arising over the Barksdale pure elections bill in connection with the pending case in Henrico county has made it almost certain that the Legislature will, at its coming November session, be asked to so amend the law as to clear up some of its alleged ambiguities. The language will likely be made plainer in relation to contests for the nomination for office, and the penalties for violations in this respect as certain and heavy as in the case of general elections. When the bill was pending Senator Barksdale fought nearly all amendments, as he feared to throw down the bars might mean its ultimate defeat, or heavy burdens in the way of adverse amendments.

It is expected that Senator Barksdale himself will introduce some perfecting amendments to the law soon after the session convenes.

COAL PRODUCTION PASSES HIGH MARK

Over Three Hundred Million Tons were Mined Last

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 30.—
A preliminary statement showing the coal production of the United States, prepared by Edward W. Parker, statistican, has just been issued by the United States Geological Survey. It shows that for the first time in the history of the United States Geological Survey. It shows that for the first time in the history of the United States the production of coal has reached a total of over 300,000,000 short tons, the actual showing being 300,300,653 tons, valued at $373,133,843.

Of this total the output of anthracite coal amounted to 36,865,710 long tons, which, as compared with the production of 60,242,660 long tons in 1901, shows, a decrease of 23,378,859, long tons, or almost forty per cent, due to the strike.

The value of the mines of the anthracite product of 1902 amounted to $81,016,937, as against $112,50,1020, in 1901.

The output of bituminous coal amounted in 1902 to 253,641,091 short tons, valued at $232,116,906, as against $22,822,899 short tons, valued at $233,406,449, in 1901.

To-morrow the State troops will begin pouring in, and on Friday as many of them as have established camp will be combined with the regulars for the first of the series of big events.

No more interesting spectacle than to-day's manoeuvre even for a civilian, could have been arranged. For the first time since the manoeuvre began all the arms of the service had a fair chance to show their mettle, and practically the whole strength of the opposing commands were in actual contact with "the enemy" at some time or another.

The general feature of the problem was the same as on the two preceding days. The Blue army having been driven in on the base at Louiseville by the Brown arms.

The Blue army having been driven in on its base at Louisville by the Brown army The Blue army having been driven in on its base at Louisville by the Brown army from Nashville, had secured reinforcements, and in turn assumed the offensive while the Brown was retiring. A Blue advance guard went out swiftly and established outposts in a well covered position along two roads running ears and west. Major Myers, in command of the Brown rear guard, after feeling out the position, directed his attack in three parallel columns. A little brush at the Blues' right was followed by a swift cavalry movement which isolated a large part of the Blues' right. The central column of Browns kept the Blue center so busy at the position in an orchard that the Brown artillery took a position which enabled it to sweep the Blue left, and a part of the center. The Blue line was compelled to fall back. The right finally got a better position and held fairly well, The advantage for the day seemed decisively in favor of the Browns.

VALUABLE DIAMOND TRADED FOR SANDWITCH

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

RRISTOL, VA., Sept. 30—A negro lad, ten years old, who had been loading about the show cases of Ryland & Rankin, jewelers, who had on display a large collection of precious stones at State and Sixth Streets, got his ingers into one of the cases while the clerks were busy with customers and succeeded in getting possession of a diamond worth $500. He quickly left the store, and it was some time before the diamond was missed. Before night a representative of the firm had located the diamond in a negro restaurant down in the negro quarters of the city. It was learned that the lad who stole the diamond had tried persistently to sell it for 25 cents, but was unable to find a buyer in that part of the city. The little fellow was hungry, and finally, despairing of getting his price for the stone he went to the restaurant, where he exhibited it to the proprietor, proposing to swap it for a ham sandwich.

The proprietor had no idea of the value of the stone and did not want it, but accepted it in exchange for a sandwich rather than see the lad go hungry. Later, when the keeper of the restaurant was approached by a representative of the jewelry firm he was more than williang to sell the stone for a dollar, and so the trade was made without revealing to the restaurant keeper at the time that the stone had been stolen and that it possessed great value.

the eight hour day, opposes abuse by the courts of the writ of injunction, and strongly asserts the principle of the union shop.

The address describes the recent conference with President Roosevelt, quoting the President as favoring the eight hour bill. In the conference, says the address, the "open shop" idea was carefully considered. The address continues:

"Replying to statements on the subject, President Roosevelt set forth that ir his decision he had nothing in mind but a strict compliance with Federal, including civil service, laws, and that he recognized a difference between employment by the government circumseribed by those laws and any other form of employment, and that his decision in the Miller case should not be understood to have any other effect or influence than affecting direct employment by the government in accordance therewith. He furthermore made plain that in any form of employment excepting that so circumseribed, he believed the full employment of union men was preferable either to non-union or 'open shop.'

"In view of the publicity given the subject, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor takes this opportunity to say that the trade union movement stands for strictly union shop, experience having proved that where the open shop' system has been tried reduction in wages and profits have ensued, with general disaster to the industry practicing that system, and therefore declares that the best interests of the labor movement calls for the employment of union workers and discourages in every way, shape and form, the deteriorating effects which follow the recognition of the 'open shop,'

The address argues that the success of agreements with employers depends on the complete organization of labor, for enly an organized body can carry into execution such an agreement.
